Visit the world-famous Bodleian Libraries – a must-see cultural destination in the heart of Oxford
Welcome to the Bodleian

A trip to Oxford is incomplete without a visit to the world famous Bodleian Libraries. The Bodleian Library dates back to 1488, with the library, as it stands today, opening in 1602 by Sir Thomas Bodley. In its reading rooms generations of famous scholars have studied through the ages, amongst them monarchs, Nobel Prize winners, British Prime Ministers and writers including Oscar Wilde, C.S. Lewis and J.R.R. Tolkien.

THE OLD SCHOOLS QUADRANGLE is the intellectual heart of the university; the citadel to the ‘Republic of Letters’ to which Bodley dedicated his library. The buildings were designed to house lecture and examination rooms (‘schools’ in Oxford parlance) to replace what Bodley called ‘those ruinous little rooms’ on the site in which generations of undergraduates had been taught. Work began in 1613 and was completed in the 1620s.
Divinity School
A masterpiece of English Gothic architecture built between 1424 and 1488. Featuring a beautiful stone carved ceiling and furnishings dating back to 1669, it is the university’s oldest teaching room and the first examination school.

Duke Humphrey’s Library
The atmospheric heart and the oldest library room of the Bodleian Library features a ceiling of beautifully painted panels with the arms of the University and a special reading booth built for King Charles I. The books in this library were historically chained to the shelves and can only be consulted in the reading room to this day.

Convocation House
This impressive 17th-century room was built to house meetings of the University’s supreme legislative body. It also housed Charles I’s parliament while he was resident in Oxford during the English Civil War (1642–46).

Chancellor’s Court
With its fan-vaulted ceiling and oak panelled dock from the 1630s, the University’s imposing former courtroom sets the scene for proceedings of the past. Here, students were put on trial by the University for their misdemeanours and high jinks.

The Radcliffe Camera
Oxford’s most iconic building and a beautiful piece of classical architecture. It is named after its benefactor, the royal physician, John Radcliffe who had left money in his will to purchase land, build a library, purchase books, and pay a full-time librarian. The distinctive circular library was based on designs by the famous architect James Gibbs and built between 1737–49.

Plan your visit

The history of the Bodleian Library is the history of the University of Oxford. Located in the city centre it is a natural starting point for any visit to the city. You can easily spend half a day at our site touring the buildings, exploring exhibitions of our rich collections, sitting down for a break in the café and browsing our two unique shops. Get in touch and we are happy to help you plan your full visit.

To make the most of your visit to the Bodleian Libraries we recommend:

EXHIBITIONS & DISPLAYS

Discover more from the Library through our changing exhibitions. Located in the Weston Library are two museum-grade galleries as well as an additional exhibition case in Blackwell Hall used for smaller displays. The Weston Library runs up to three exhibitions at once, giving you a chance to marvel at the breadth and depth of material from the Bodleian’s collections.

ADMISSION IS FREE
Recommended time: 30 minutes per exhibition
SHOP & CAFÉ

As part of your visit, we recommend making time to visit our shop and café. With two shops to choose from, we have plenty of exclusive gift ideas and souvenirs to take home with you, all inspired by the library and its collections, as well as famous Oxford authors.

Our Benugo café in the Weston Library serves a delicious selection of hot and cold drinks and snacks. We highly recommend sitting down for a break in the beautiful and modern atrium, Blackwell Hall.

ACCESSIBILITY
All tours of the Bodleian Libraries include a number of stairs and some walking, no lift is available.
BODLEIAN LIBRARY
BROAD STREET, OXFORD OX1 3BG
We recommend accessing the Old Bodleian via Catte Street (to the East) using the Great Gate. The ticket office is on the right where you will be able to pick up audio guides. All guided library tours begin in the Divinity School. Access to this is through the Proscholium, directly opposite the Great Gate and through the glass doors.

WESTON LIBRARY
BROAD STREET, OXFORD OX1 3BG
The Weston Library is located on the corner of Broad Street and Parks Road. It has two exhibition rooms as well as space for smaller displays in Blackwell Hall, the main atrium. The café and Bodleian shop are in this building.

PUBLIC TRANSPORT
TRAIN
With links to London and Birmingham, Oxford is easily accessible by bus and rail. The Old Bodleian Library and Weston Library are a 15-minute walk from Oxford train station.

BUSES
Buses travel in from outside Oxford and there are five Park and Ride sites connected to Oxford.

COACH
Oxford City Centre has coach bays for drop-off and pick-up only. These are located at:
- Beaumont Street (westbound): opposite the Ashmolean Museum OX1 2NT (closest to the Bodleian)
- St Giles’ (northbound): in the lay-by by the Taylor Institution Library (Taylorian) OX1 3NA
- St Aldates South (northbound): just south of the Combined Court OX1 1TL
- St Aldates North (northbound): just north of the Combined Court OX1 1TL

COACH parking is not available in the city centre.
We advise coaches and minibuses park at Redbridge Park and Ride, South of the city.
